(28) Sales funnel.
Definition: The sales funnel describes the stages a potential customer moves through - from first hearing about a product to buying it. It is called a funnel because many enter at the top but fewer reach the bottom. Typical stages: Awareness, interest, Consideration, Purchase.
Example: A car dealership gets 1000 people seeing their ad, 200 visiting the website, 50 booking a test drive, and 15 buying. The funnel shows ~~exan~~ exactly where people drop off.
Source HubSpot (2024).

04 Marketing AND Campaign Analytics

(29) Marketing Campaign
Definition: Is a planned, coordinated set of activities across multiple channels, all working toward one specific goal over a set period - like increasing sales or raising brand awareness.
Example: A fast-food chain launching a new burger might run instagram ads, influencer posts, loyalty emails, and in-store promotions simultaneously with the same message.
Source: HubSpot (2024)

(30) Post-Campaign Analysis
Definition: Post-Campaign Analysis is reviewing a campaign after it ends to measure whether it hit its goals and what can be improved. It uses